Excerpt: .present state of the Jews, the expectations that we cherish, and the progress that is made in enlightening them, deserve attention. First of all, I will look at the evidences of a movement in connexion with them from certain civil occurrences; and, secondly, at the proofs of a movement evidently from the finger of God in relation to their spiritual condition. In their civil relations (I am not pronouncing whether it be right or wrong) there is indicated returning favour of the nations to a people they have persecuted, oppressed, plundered. I am not stating whether that movement be right or wrong, but simply that as a movement it is the evidence to me of returning favour to a people who heretofore have been the objects of their hatred and their proscription. The very first proclamation that the Jews had rights at all was...
